Forecast for Monday 01 Jul 2024

Weather: Cloudy to start with outbreaks of rain through the morning. Becoming drier and brighter, with some brief sunnier spells possible for a time into the afternoon but turning overcast once again into the evening with more persistent outbreaks of rain to end the day. Fresh westerly winds.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 30% until midday. Generally 60% during the afternoon and reducing back to 10-20% during the evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Cloud base lowering to 400-500m at times through the morning, especially in any rain, but cloud generally lifting and breaking above the summits by midday. Cloud bases then lowering from the west into the late afternoon to once again cover tops above around 400-500m, and locally some lower slopes in the west in association with rain and drizzle. Visibility will be poor at times, especially in low cloud, rain and drizzle. Otherwise, generally good, occasionally very good visibility during the early afternoon.
